“Chasing Ghosts in the City of Joy” The Hindu

Translated from the French original by Sriparna Chatterjee originally published in French by Arlea, Paris

This novel about Calcutta tells as much of the city’s past as of its present. It is a play of histories, lives and myths. In this book, fact overlaps fiction; fiction meanders along the lanes of history; literary interludes refer to many writings on ghosts or prodigies of India and Calcutta. On certain pages the reader encounters ghosts of Calcutta narrating their own story. A narrative that is as magical as real. Many lives crisscross; the poor Christian maid servant, her lovely young daughter Rosemarie; the Bengali man Sarvesh, a lover of France, who loses his wife and lives an existence that is ghost of his vibrant past. Sebastien Ortiz aka Fabrice Etienne, who has spent a large part of his life in Asia and Calcutta for many years, goes on the ghostly trail of the city.
